Council Considers Them
On Complaint of 3rd
Street Speeding.

TAX GAS STATIONS Permit and Restrictions Levied Against Local Filling Stations.

Automatic traffic lights loomed up for Hope last night when the city council, in its regular semi-monthly meeting, aired the complaints of West Third street householders that meeting, aired the complaints of fare as a race track.

The council finally decided to install "Slow" signs at Brookwood grade school, on East Third, and at various points on West Third and the streets bordering Hope Senior High School.

Lights for Sale

Consideration of the automatic traffic lights came up when the council was informed that a number of these could be bought cheaply from cities which are changing from the suspended type of lamp, to the newer post type. No final decision was made regarding purchase of this equipment, but it appeared to strike a favorable note among the aldermen.

The mayor and council agreed to launch a vigorous campaign against speeding, however, and motorists who "step on it" or slide across the stop-signs in the downtown district, will be haled into court without further warning than that given them last night.

A new franchise tax was proposed and executed last night when City Attorney U. A. Gentry introduced an ordinance compelling gasoline filling stations to take out special permits, and placing certain restrictions on their location and type of construction. The council suspended the rules to permit the third and final ruling, and adopted the measure by unanimous vote.

Schedule of Taxes

The new ordinance provides that the operator must pay a tax of $5 for every gasoline tank, $2 for every driveway, $2 for each pump, $2 for every portable gas or oil pump, and $2 for every grease-rack. Permit for the building housing the station is taken care of under the general city building code.

Future filling stations must be of fireproof construction, and equipment must be of the latest safety type.

Filling station in the future may be located within 200 feet of any church, school, hospital, park or public building, and must be at least 10 feet from the property line and five feet from the curb.

A public hearing before the council will be allowed each applicant for a permit.

All members of the city government were present last night except Dr. Don Smith, alderman from Ward One.

Human Fly Will Perform In Hope

Man Who Climbed The Woolworth Building To Scale Walls Here

Babe White, world's greatest daredevil and famous human fly, internationally known throughout the United States, Canada, Cuba and Old Mexico, is to climb the First National Bank building here Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

Besides climbing the building with his bare hands he is to perform upside-down stunts in midair, showing you that he has nerve in the air upside-down, as well as right side up, and that it does not make him dizzy to look down. This and other stunts on the wall.

Mr. White has been a professional daredevil for the last fifteen years, having climbed the Woolworth building, 63 stories, New York; L. C. Smith building, 42 stories, Seattle, Wash.; Amicable building, 22 stories, Waco, Texas; St. Francis Hotel, 12 stories, Humboldt Bank building, 17 stories, San Francisco, Cal.; the historic Cathedral of Mexico City, which is 250 feet in height and 256 years old, built by the Indians before the reign of Maximilian.

During his exhibitions in Mexico City it was estimated that he had a crowd of 60,000 people daily watching him perform his death-defying stunts. He promises the citizens of Hope a high class exhibition of nerve, skill and ability, one that you seldom get a chance to see.

A powerful searchlight will also be used, so it will enable the crowds that come out to see every movement as plain as day.

Spring Visiting Day Is March 14

All-Day Program Planned at Experimental Station.

Annual Spring Visiting Day at the University of Arkansas Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station here is set for March 14, when an unusual interesting program of experiment results and studies are to be offered for the many people interested this year in truck and fruit farming, according to George W. Ware, assistant director in charge.

On account of the proposed reduction in cotton acreage farmers this year are more interested than ever before in the best and most economical methods of raising truck crops, and the all-day program planned at the Fruit and Truck Branch Station which is expressly designed to meet this need probably will be attended by the largest crowd that has ever been on the Station grounds for Spring Visiting Day. Last year the station was visited by thousands of people and the spring visiting day attracted an unprecedented number of farmers, agricultural workers, and business men.

A number of valuable farm practices will be discussed. The program will include studies in mixing and applying fertilizers, pruning and spraying different kinds of fruits, home garden management, landscape gardening, fence building, hot bed management, and other timely farm practices.

The feature of the day will be a tour over the Station Farm to see and study the various kinds of cover crops which are playing such an important part in soil building. Three (Continued on page three)

Hundred or More Persons Die When Tarn Takes Town

Is Worst Flood Disaster
Known During Last Century.

TOWN IN DARKNESS

Government Asked To Appropriate Money
For Victims.

TOULSE, France, March 5.—(AP)—One hundred or more persons of the Moissac Parish were feared to be lost when the Tarn river embankment broke shortly after midnight, and flooded the town in one of the worst flood disasters France has known during the last century.

Many homes collapsed when the waters had destroyed the electric current and cut the gas mains. Reports received here mentioned the crack of the houses, the futile cries of drowning persons, and of those who were trapped in residences. The exact number of victims is undetermined and probably will not be known until the water subsides.

One hundred are believed dead in the town of Moissac aside from the 25 who are known to have been victims of the raging waters in other districts near Moissac. Waters of the smaller rivers near here are reported to be rising rapidly today.

PARIS, March 5.—(AP)—The French government has asked parliament for the appropriation of 35,000,000 francs which is approximately $1,400,000 for the relief of flood victims of Moissac.

Cannon Suggests Hospital Merger

Offers Private Hospital to Association at Price of $40,000.

Dr. Cannon, announced today that he had submitted a proposal to the Hope and Hempstead County Hospital association which he hoped would result in a consolidation of his Josephine Hospital and the association's Julia Chester Hospital, in the proposed new municipal hospital which the association is asking the city government to finance.

Dr. Cannon's statement said that he had offered the public association his hospital property and his residence adjoining it, on South Main street, at a price of $40,000, against an appraised valuation of $60,000.

"I am making this offer," his statement said, "in the interest of a united city general hospital in Hope. I have made the price thousands of dollars lower than the cost of replacing the property, but I do not mind selling at a price that means an actual loss, if it will provide Hope with one well-managed, well-equipped hospital, where all doctors may work in harmony."

Dr. Cannon's proposal is expected to come before the meeting of the membership of Hope and Hempstead County Hospital association at the city hall Friday. It is an alternative to the association's recently announced plan to build a one-story hospital building at a cost of $25,000, on newly acquired property several blocks south of the business district, on Main street.

The association obtained the appointment of a special committee from the city council some time ago to discuss plans for municipal financing of the construction of such a hospital, and its re-sale to the association on long-term notes.

The report of this committee has been expected at every meeting of the council for the last several weeks, and will probably be made soon after the association's meeting Friday.

John Dunn May Be Hanged for Murder

Status for Submitting Chair For Gallows Was Enacted In 1914.

LITTLE ROCK, March 5.—(AP)—Should the 65-year-old man held at the state penitentiary here, long sought as John T. Dunn, be sentenced to pay the death penalty in Johnson county for the murder of Sheriff John Powers 28 years ago, he would have to be hanged.

Attorney General Howell Norwood advised the Johnson county officers today that in as much as the indictment against him was returned in 1902 before the electric chair was substituted for the gallows, he would be put to death in the Johnson county court yard in the same manner as were his two associates. The status for substituting the chair for the gallows was enacted in 1914.

The man held here was recently arrested in Los Vegas, Nevada, and continues to deny he is John Dunn, who escaped officers at Clarksville, Ark., after a bank robbery and gun battle in which Sheriff Powers was killed.

Public Inspects New 'Mop' Bridges

McKamey Finishes Job
Between Hope and Fulton.

An invitation to the public to visit and inspect the newly constructed concrete bridges on the Missouri Pacific main line between Hope and Fulton, was extended today by A. M. McKamey, chief of bridge maintenance and construction.

The Missouri Pacific is now running engines across these structures, weighing 167 tons, according to Mr. McKamey.

Owing to the fine mixture of materials and steel, the concrete contained in these bridges will show a greater tensile strength 90 years from now than it does today, according to the experts. The mixture is poured in the forms at a temperature of 70 degrees, and is so thick that it will lie on a leather belt running through the air at a 45-degree angle.

Bridges of this type cost approximately $100 per linear foot, according to Mr. McKamey.

New White Way for DeQueen Is Approved

Poultry Day To Aid Development

George F. Dodd Tells Chamber of Plans for Saturday

Something even greater than the famous Watermelon Festival was predicted for Hempstead county's Poultry Days—the first of which will be held this Saturday—by George F. Dodd, of the Hempstead County Poultry association, in a discussion before the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Barlow today noon.

"The psychological value of celebrating for the poultry business during the early spring is easy to understand," Mr. Dodd said. "The display of fine flocks at the Southwest Arkansas Fair every fall makes folks enthusiastic over poultry—but by the time spring comes around they have lost interest, just when they need it most."

Boost Poultry Business
The aim of our first Poultry Day, this Saturday, will be to bring everybody's attention to the profitable side of the poultry business, in a section of the country which should be the mightiest poultry producer in America.

"We will have Prof. Frederick Stoneburn, of Memphis, one of the great poultry authorities of the South as our principal speaker, at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the city hall. During the day the visiting farmers may see prize poultry pens on display in downtown show windows. Settings of eggs will also be on display, and numbers of them will be given away as premiums.

"Few folks realize the tremendous possibilities of the poultry business on the average farm. Unlike watermelons, poultry is a year-round proposition, and for a given price may be moved a tany season in almost any quantity.

"New York City consumes a carload of eggs—2,400 cases—every 24 minutes, which is at the rate of 60 carloads a day.

A Municipal Investment

THE City of Jonesboro, according to a story published from that city this week, is spending $120,000 enlarging and improving its municipal water and light plant.

Electric machinery is compact and costly. It takes a long time for earnings to write off an investment of the size required to handle any kind of electric-generating station. But whoever assumes the responsibility for furnishing service—whether it be the station of a private power company, or the municipal plant of local taxpayers—they must foot this investment bill.

It is encouraging, therefore, when the taxpayers of Hope notice that another municipal-plant city like Jonesboro has the courage and foresight to plan for the future just as thoroughly as would any private power company.

If every municipally-owned utility had been as wisely conducted in the past, municipal ownership would be far more extensive than it is today. The publicly-owned plants which are outstanding successes are usually those whose operations are closely patterned after the private power companies, for efficiency and commonsense administration will prove the case for either municipal or private ownership.

The progress of the Jonesboro municipal plant should remind Hope that although the paying-out of the city hall was a notable achievement for public ownership, a still more important objective is improving the physical plant which makes profits possible.

We imagine that the city has the utmost confidence in the local power board—but news like that from Jonesboro can't help but enable the taxpayers to better understand some of the problems which are constantly before the board.

The Mayor Makes a "Bust"

LITTLE ROCK'S bachelor mayor, Pat Robinson, will turn 30 on St. Patrick's day. Older politicians who took a sound beating from Pat at the last municipal election, probably chuckled and felt more hopeful when the mayor, giving an interview to N. E. A. Service last Saturday, made a woeeful error.

The reporter—as reporters will—asked Pat why he never had married. And Pat, according to the N. E. A. dispatch in last Saturday's Star, replied:

"I really haven't the time to think about it."

There's a remark that ought to be enshrined in the hall of famous last lines. We don't mean Pat's political career—we mean Pat himself. Napoleon really hadn't the time to think about Blucher, until Waterloo fell on him. And here is a promising young statesman who finds politics so engrossing he hasn't time for anything else.

We suspect Pat's political opponents would have felt less comfortable had the young warrior happened to remember a scene from a recent show, in which the gentleman, accused by the lady of having something more important to do, replied: "Nothing is more important than a beautiful woman."

Changing Supreme Court.

IN THE early years of the present century the Philippines presented serious problems of government under the American system. The big question was whether all the constitutional guarantees (such as trial by jury), belonging to an old civilization schooled in self-government, applied to islands whose people were just being initiated into the modern world. "Does the Constitution follow the flag?" became the current inquiry. In a series of momentous decisions the supreme court found ways of deciding it did not.

Whereupon "Mr. Dooley" announced that anyway the supreme court follows the elections returns. There is a world of wisdom in that saying. A Constitution written a century and a half ago has been made sufficiently elastic to cover the needs of the nation of today through the interpretative wisdom of the supreme court.—Kansas City Star.

Inspiration

A WIFE swears that her husband made her wear magnifying glasses at table so that the scant fare he allowed her would look more like a banquet. Our sympathy to the lady, but at the same time we must thank her for an idea. We suggest that unfortunates forced to attend banquets hereafter be handed at the door, not only magnifying glasses to make the food loom larger, but electric tongue-warmers to make the cold roast more palatable, and a device which we shall presently invent, to be called the "mini-vox," which will shorten all the after-dinner speeches by half.—New Orleans Item.

Still Walking 'Round in Circles!

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The Republican progressive group in the Senate, whose alliance with the Democrats has upset the program of general tariff revision upward as contained in the bills passed by the House and submitted by the Senate Finance committee, is proud rather than ashamed of itself.

It looks upon the general achievement of this Congress so far with great satisfaction, contending that the House tariff bill was so inequitable that it necessarily is taking a long time to rid it of its more obnoxious features and write some new improvements into tariff law.

Defends Long Delay

"The Senate has taken a great deal of time with the tariff and perhaps more than it should have taken," admits Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, leader of the western progressive Republicans. "But this is the only place in the world where any bill, especially one like a tariff bill, gets any consideration."

"Everybody knows that the House passes a tariff bill as a matter of form—that it passes it as a whole or not at all without giving members any opportunity to offer amendments."

"A tariff bill contains thousands of items and every portion of the country, so it is not remarkable that its consideration should take a long time here where we have free debate and every member has the right to offer amendments. That is true of every important piece of legislation which contains more than one controversial item."

"It has been worse in this Congress because the Senate Finance Committee majority, which wrote the bill we had before us, is packed with senators from a very few manufacturing states. Only one member of the majority side, Senator Coughens of Michigan, was not one of the outfit which packed the bill with outrageous duties. They made the work all the more burdensome and tedious to those of us who wanted a fair measure. The only alternative to this long, drawn-out tedious process is to do like the House and take our tariff laws from the industrial members who take them straight from industry.

"The tariff bill as passed by the Senate won't be satisfactory, but we have some amendments in this bill which will go farther than ever before to provide machinery for making scientific tariff legislation in the future.

"Some unsatisfactory rates will remain, such as that on rayon, which has been kept exorbitantly high. But if we can put in the statute the provision requiring the tariff commission to make separate reports on the facts regarding foreign and domestic production and costs, so that items will be handled separately by Congress, we will eliminate the log-rolling which has been long the curse of tariff legislation."

Entire Bill May Die

"We have also written in the tentative plan for the benefit of agriculture."

"None of these things is through the conference, of course. That's when the fight will come. But in my judgment if most of these improvements don't stay in the bill, no bill will ever be passed."

County Agents

A live-at-home program is being launched in Hempstead county in an effort to promote safe farming for 1930 according to County Agent Lynn Smith. This is a part of a state wide program and those who meet certain requirements will be given a certificate of honor, signed by the Dean of the College of Agriculture of the University of Arkansas and the Governor of Arkansas.

Farmers who will enter this program are urged to get in touch with the county agent and secure an enrollment blank and a live-at-home extension circular for enrollment. Following is a copy of the enrollment blank:

Deep in every human heart
Some hidden glory lies;
Some undiscovered field of good
Is hidden from our eyes;
I'd like to have the grace each day
To bring from souls I meet
The hidden beauty of their lives,
And so make life more sweet.
Deep in every human heart
Are feelings fine and true;
Great possibilities of good
Are hidden from our view.
For me the joy of life shall be
To look beneath and find
The hidden good which always dwells
In all of human kind;
Then if I call the best there is
From those I meet each day,
Men coming after me will know
That I have passed this way.

Follow-Up Campaign

"At the Poultry Day celebration Saturday we expect to compile a registry of all guests, which will give us a valuable contact for improving all poultry lines in the county."

Another speaker before the meeting was Ben Eastin, editor of the South Arkansas magazine, Stamps, Ark. Mr. Eastin recently gave Hempstead county watermelons and other local products an excellent display in his magazine, and he is in the local territory to obtain additional subscriptions, on which depends the entire support of his magazine. He told the chamber directors that the issue containing the Hope watermelon display was broadcast to the extent of 1,000 copies on selected rural routes in Minnesota and Pennsylvania, appealing to farmers in those sections to consider the natural advantages and possibilities offered a settler in Southwest Arkansas.

Owing to the absence of Ralph Routon and O. A. Graves, president and vice-president of the chamber, Dr. W. R. Anderson presided at the luncheon. Reports of committees were heard, and Secretary Homer Pigg urged the chamber members to turn out in force for the annual spring visiting day at the State Experiment Farm, which will be Friday, March 14.

Many farmers, with their families, plan to bring their lunch and spend the entire day at the Station Farm. Workers from the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture staff, business men, and representatives of commercial organizations will also spend the day at the Station.

Ouachita Delays Drive For Funds

To Postpone Building and Endowment Fund Until After July 1.

ARKADEPHIA, March 5.—In view of the huge debt of the Arkansas State Baptist convention the proposed building campaign for Ouachita College has been postponed to begin July 1 or after instead of immediately, it has been announced at the college here.

Plans were made for the new buildings and enlargement of the endowment to $1,000,000, but for the best interests of all concerned, these plans will await the completion of the drive for funds to wipe out the big deficit in the accounts of home and foreign missions and education of the Baptist church of Arkansas, officials said.

The college campaign was to have been an independent one, not directly affecting the church drive, but inasmuch as both are interests of the Baptists it was believed that there would be hindrance to both should they run concurrently. As the college faces no crisis and the church does the latter is given the right-of-way, it was explained.

Ouachita needs two or three new buildings, principally a science building. The plan has been for C. H. Moses, Little Rock attorney, and Arthur Vestal, Arkadelphia capitalist, each to head groups to raise $200,000 for the new buildings. It is probable that these plans will go through after the debt drive is off the books.

Ouachita also is seeking an additional $500,000 to increase the endowment to $1,000,000. As matters now stand, with a little over $50,000 endowment, Ouachita has reached its capacity of 324 students allowed under that endowment by standardizing agencies. President Charles D. Johnson issued this statement:

"In view of the huge debt of the convention and in view of the fact that I am for the debt campaign 100 per cent, and because I do not want to hinder in any way, but want to assist in every way possible, I wish to state that Ouachita will not only delay the college campaign until July 1, but will delay it until the end of the convention year."

Officers Get 2 Stills In Raid

Fifty Gallons of Whiskey and Over 600 Gallons of Mash Found.

Deputy sheriff Riley Llewellyn, A. M. Purdie and Gene Rooker captured two whisky stills yesterday afternoon in the southeast corner of this county and near the Nevada county line.

The first still was captured about four o'clock. It was a zinc affair containing fifty gallons of liquor along with four barrels of mash. When officers appeared near the scene they apparently had been watched, as no one was at the still, and no one escaped, as was previously reported. The second still was captured after officers waded water far into the Bodcaw bottoms. It was located about 6:30 o'clock. Four hundred gallons of mash was found which was destroyed along with the 50 gallon copper outfit.

Goose Lays Golden Egg In Officer's Cooked Hat

Who gets the egg—was the question that not only puzzled, but amused, many members of the cast and company engaged in the making of "General Crack," John Barrymore's first Warner Bros. and Vitaphone all-talking picture now at the Saenger theatre.

In one scene of the story of romantic adventure in the early eighteenth century a large flock of geese was required for the proper barnyard atmosphere.

Though the triangular hat worn by General Crack and his shabby-looking renegades might not seem to a human being a likely repository for an egg, it appeared in a different light to an ambitious goose. Production halted for a few moments when the hat, a warm egg inside of it, was discovered lying under a table just off-stage.

"Shorty" Curley, owner of the fowl, jokingly claimed rights, while Alan Crosland, director, maintained that it was, beyond question, studio property.

Some Marlowe... would have been no... The argument came... identified the hat as... n't tasted a goose egg... said, as he placed it in... box, "I'll certainly make... breakfast."

Would Eliminate Tie On Gridiron

Coach of Peru Teachers Suggests Four Downs As Extra Period.

NEW YORK, March 5.—Elimination of the football games is the object of a plan suggested by Coach Lon R. Gray, head football mentor at Peru state teachers college, Peru, Neb., who would have each team take four extra downs, starting from mid-field, with the victory going to the team making the most offensive yardage. It is planned to give the plan a trial in the game next fall between St. Benedict's college of Atchison, Kans. and Peru normal, if the contest should end in a tie.

In case the teams are tied at the end of the regular playing period, Coach Gray's plan would provide that the ball be placed in play on the 50 yard line. The teams would flip for possession of the ball, with the team winning the flip empowered to decide whether it or its opponent should make the first four-down attempt.

Provision is made that the four downs be played under exact game conditions, and that an intercepted pass grounded in the end zone, or a fumble, if recovered by the opposition, forfeits the remaining number of downs.

In the event the team makes a touchdown on any down other than the last, the six points for the touchdown would be awarded, the team would be allowed to try for point, and in addition would be permitted to take its remaining number of downs—ernewing the play from the 50-yard line.

The total offensive yardage made by each team would be balanced against that of its opponent and the team making the greater would be awarded an extra point to break the tie. If a touchdown has been added in the four extra downs, those points

HOOKS AND SLIDES

by William Braucher

Putting a Hop on It

THE pitchers are in the south. From this day forward will come stories of rejuvenation, of that had shoulder that is coming around all right this year, of that leg that used to bother but is perfect now, and mingled with the assortment will come tales of strange new curves and hop-balls that will be seen when the big show moves northward.

New hook, stop-balls, fadeaways, floaters, knuckle-balls, will be discovered from day to day by the pitchers in the south. Some of them will be real, but most of them will be forgotten by the time the season opens.

Even Matty Tried One

NO pitcher is above experiment. At one time or another they all catch the fever of discovery. Even Christy Mathewson had it. He worked for weeks once with a new spit ball that would wiggle. It was a slow one, and did strange things on its way to the plate, but in the end Matty had to give it up. He couldn't control it. That is the way with most of the trick deliveries; you never know where they're going.

Spring training camp used to be a fertile field of fancy. In the old days there were all kinds of stories from the south about the strange deliveries that would be revealed when the teams started play. There is still the classical yarn about the discovery of the spitball.

Catcher First to Throw 'Em

FOR several years a catcher for the New York Giants named Bowerman threw spitballs without knowing what they were. He would wet his fingers, heave the ball to second and it would take on a crazy motion. Whether or not that is where Elmer Stricklett, of the Dodgers, got his idea for the spitball isn't known, but it was Stricklett, fooling around with the ball in spring training, who gave the baseball world one of the most deceptive deliveries of all time.

The story of Stricklett's discovery was flashed over the wires, and it was no time at all until scores of pitchers were trying it. The sports editor of one Chicago paper refused the story, saying it was "vulgar stuff." The spitball also will be added.

In regular scrimmage, the ball would not be brought back to the 50-yard line at the completion of the play but would be left at the spot where it is downed. Penalties would be inflicted as in the regular game, and this yardage would be recorded as minus yardage.

There Are Four Left

GRADUALLY the number of spitball throwers dwindled. This year there are still four men allowed to moisten the apple before they throw it. They are Jack Quinn, of the Athletics; Burrell Grimes of the Pirates; Urban Faber of the White Sox, and Clarence Mitchell of the Cardinals. Grimes is still going like a house afire. Faber also is pitching good ball. Quinn was pounded from the box in his world series appearance last year, but there are still ball games left in the Pottsville mine. Mitchell of the Cardinals is 39 and still fingering foolers.

It all started because a pitcher wanted to find an easy way to get the side out.

Sparklers Need Financial Support To Enter National Cage Tourney

ARKADELPHIA, March 1.—Unless something in the form of outside finance turns up in a hurry, the Sparkman Sparklers, Arkansas' girls' champion basketball team and one of the best bets in the country to win the national girls' tournament to be staged in Wichita, Kan., near the end of March, may not get to go to the national meet. That was the statement made by J. F. North, manager of the Sparklers, when asked if the Sparklers were going to the meet.

Mr. North said that he had tried all year long to keep enough ahead to finance the Sparklers' trip to the meet, but that the heavy expense of bringing such teams as the Dallas Cyclones, the Oklahoma Presbyterian College Co-eds, and the strong girls' team from Durant, Okla., had made a hole in the funds of the team.

The Sparkler manager and all members of the team feel that if they get to the meet, they'll bring Arkansas a national championship. Basketball experts all over the country rate the Sparklers with the four best girls' teams of the country. Included in this four are the Dallas Cyclones, the Dallas Sunoco and the Oklahoma Presbyterian College girls. The Sparklers have evened series this season with the Cyclones and the Oklahomans. The Arkansas girls played the Sunoco only once, losing that game.

One of the main reasons that Manager North wishes to take his team to the meet is that this is the last year that many of the present stars of the outfit will be playing with Sparkman. The team is organized of girls attending high school at Sparkman and with the close of this year of school, many stars such as Quinne and Irene Hamm and Marjorie Leonard will graduate, and the original Sparkman team will be broken up. Manager North feels that the girls are due to the trip to the meet and a chance at the national title not only for this reason, but also for the fact that they have been playing such consistent ball this year.

Out of 21 games this season, the Sparklers have won 17, tied one and lost only three. And all of the games have been against strong sextets. Quinne Hamm has been right this year, scoring 558 points in the 21 games played, or more points than the combined total of all players who have outscored her this season. She has been outscored in only three games, one with the national champions, another with the Cyclones and the third with the Presbyterian co-ed. She has played in every quarter of every game, although not every minute of every quarter. She has been high scorer at the national meet for the past two years.

Murder Backstairs

©1930 by NEA SERVICE INC

By ANNE AUSTIN AUTHOR OF "THE AVENTINE PARROT" "THE BLACK PIGEON" ETC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

From the floor of a lake on the BERKELEY estate, DETECTIVE DUNDEE lifts the body of little DORIS MATTHEWS, tiny maid, grimly announcing "Murder" to his fellow guest, SEMOUR CROSBY.

It is seven o'clock of a Saturday morning in September. Friday evening to the Berkeley home had been so unpleasant that Dundee, invited to dinner for the weekend, had had premonitions of disaster. In the household met Mr. and Mrs. Berkeley, the latter a vulgar, snubbing, society-climber. Dick, a playboy, CLORINDA, engaged to Crosby, a New York society widow, GIGI, 15-year-old sub-deb, MRS. LAMBERT, social secretary to Mrs. Berkeley and a close friend of Crosby's, WICKETT, the butler, and EUGENE ARNOLD, chauffeur, Doris's fiance.

Before sleeping Dundee had puzzled over several questions: Why is Clorinda marrying Crosby? Why did Gigi meet Dick Berkeley late at night as he had forced her to promise? How late did Mr. and Mrs. Berkeley quarrel over Clorinda's engagement in the library? And now, who killed Doris Matthews by striking her over the head with that perfume flask, whose odor pervades the summer-house? Dundee answers: CAPTAIN STRAWN of the Homicide Squad.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VIII

"HELLO! Dundee speaking. . .

Connect me with Captain Strawn's home, please," the young detective said, in a low voice when Police Headquarters had answered. A minute or two later, after his chief's sleepy growl had come over the wire, Dundee recounted the discovery of Doris Matthews' murder in a few words as possible.

"Murder at Hillcrest!" Strawn interrupted early in the recital. "You didn't get bored with nothing to do, and kill the girl yourself, did you, Dundee?"

But when the brief story was finished Captain Strawn was not in a jocular mood. He issued orders grimly: "Get back on the scene of the crime immediately, and don't let Crosby out of your sight till I arrive. You say the butler's with him now? Good! See that nothing's touched, and for God's sake, don't spread the alarm through the house. . . And say, lie low, Dundee! Don't give yourself away as a detective. As a guest in the house, forcibly detained there by the police, you may be a lot of help, just as you were in the Rhodes House murders."

Dundee grinned faintly as he "Yessed" every order of his chief. "A lot of help" in the Rhodes House murders, indeed! He'd solved that case practically single-handed, hadn't he? And Lieutenant Strawn had become Captain Strawn as a result! But what did credit and promotion matter? It was the game itself he loved. . .

As he obeyed his chief and returned directly to the summerhouse, Dundee realized, a little shamefacedly, that his horror over Doris's brutal murder was already giving way to the thrill of the chase to run down her murderer.

BUT tears for Doris had already begun to flow, Dundee discovered, as he neared the summerhouse. Wickett was dabbing at his eyes with a folded handkerchief, and Crosby wheeled, whipping out his own handkerchief from his retrieved dressing-gown, when he saw his fellow-guest approaching.

"The police will be here immediately," Dundee announced. "Captain Strawn in charge."

To his relief, the name meant nothing to the butler. Undoubtedly Wickett had come to Hillcrest and the Berkeleys since the middle of July; otherwise, if Wickett took any interest in crime news at all, he must have seen Strawn's name daily in connection with the murders at the Rhodes House.

But Wickett was speaking, tremulously: "Mr. Crosby and I have been talking about the poor girl in there, sir. You saw her for a moment last night yourself, sir. I'm sure you will agree with us that she was a—little darling, sir."

"Yes, she was a very beautiful girl," Dundee answered, huskily. "You knew her, too, Mr. Crosby? I believe I heard you talking about her with Mrs. Lambert last night."

Seymour Crosby pocketed his handkerchief, but his somber brown eyes glistened with fresh tears as he answered unsteadily: "Yes, I knew her very well indeed. She was my—wife's maid for several years. Phyllis—Mrs. Crosby—was extremely fond of little Doris, and so was I. But—I don't forgive me, Mr. Dundee—I don't believe I can talk about her—yet."

"Pardon me, sir," Wickett spoke. "I see a special delivery boy coming up the driveway. Perhaps I'd better go and sign for the letter, sir."

"I'll go," Dundee interrupted. "I'm expecting a special delivery letter myself."

Luckily, he reached the back door before the boy had dismounted from his bicycle. As he had expected, the long, thick envelope was addressed to himself. He signed the slip, and was eagerly scanning the first of the newspaper clippings which the envelope contained before the boy was well away.

"These must be from the newspaper morgue," Dundee decided. "I'll have to be careful of them."

"Hm!" Strawn considered, frowning. "Suppose Clorinda killed her."

Much better than the resume I asked for. Good old Strawn!"

NO time to read them now, although he was keen to refresh his memory of the briefly sensational "Crosby case." Strawn and his men might arrive any minute, and his chief must not catch him disobeying orders.

It was dreary waiting, with that still, wet body on the bench, and the odor of the perfume pouring over them, with every gust of the now brisk south wind. But at last the ordeal was ended. Three cars, with the initials "P. D." on their doors, swept up the driveway and curved round the house to the east. Climbing out of the first car, Captain Strawn apparently gave orders to his police retinue to sit tight and await further orders, for he was alone as he strode across the clipped green lawn.

"Well, boy, what's the lay?" Strawn asked. "Any facts you didn't tell me over the phone?"

Briefly, but omitting no essential detail, Dundee told of seeing Clorinda Berkeley steal out of the house the night before; of Dick Berkeley's proposed rendezvous with the murdered girl, and of Dick's absence from his room throughout the night.

"Hm!" Strawn considered, frowning. "Wonder if those two facts are connected? Suppose Clorinda knew, in some way, of the affair between her brother and the maid, had the same bright idea you did of preventing another meeting and a possibly messy scandal on the eve of her marriage to the society swell, sneaked out to argue with the girl and killed her during the quarrel that followed—her brother being present and then beating it in a panic?"

"PERHAPS," Dundee conceded respectfully, "but—how did the flask of perfume get mixed up in it? Clorinda wasn't carrying it. I'm sure of that. Not in her hands, at least, for she had nothing in them but the scarf with which Doris's skirts were bound. And she was wearing one of those light, floating capes which don't have capacious pockets, I believe. Although the light was dim, I had a pretty clear picture of her as she descended the stairs, and I could swear the cape wasn't weighted down at all—floated about her, in fact."

"Maybe the maid, Doris, had stolen the perfume," Strawn offered.

"I heard Mrs. Berkeley say last night that Doris hated perfume, that it gave her a sick headache to smell it," Dundee objected. "And although the stuff was expensive—worth $32 an ounce, according to Mrs. Berkeley—and the crystal flask was valuable in itself, I can't somehow see Doris as a petty thief. Also, why should she take it with her on a rendezvous with her mistress' son?"

"By me!" Strawn shrugged. "But you yourself say she was killed with the perfume flask, or at least stunned with a blow which broke the flask before she was dumped into the lake. It'll be up to the coroner to determine the cause of death, and I suppose he'd better get busy as soon as he arrives."

"Right!" Strawn agreed. "But now at the risk of Crosby's thinking you are too thick with the police, I want you to go and have another look in his room. Take care not to spread the alarm, however, and if young Berkeley's there, have him come to the summerhouse immediately. . . By the way, whose idea was the swimming party, anyway?"

"Georgina Berkeley's," Dundee answered curtly. "They call her Gigi. She's only a kid—15."

"Then I suppose that lets her out," Strawn conceded. "She'd hardly invite a party down to see what she'd done, then obligingly discover the body herself. Unless there's something in that old saying about a criminal returning to the scene of the crime. . . Hey, boy! Keep your shirt on! I'm not accusing anyone—yet! But in a case like this you've got to think of everything. Now get along with you!"

Federal Census Due Next Month

Supervisor Stevens Issues Appeal To Local Householders To Respond.

The fifteenth decennial census in the history of the United States will be taken next month, it was announced today by L. Warren Stevens of Texarkana, supervisor for the Eighth federal census district of Arkansas, which includes Hempstead county.

The national enumeration will be made by a force of about 100,000 enumerators, according to Mr. Stevens. They will go from house to house and secure the information required for the census. Every person is to be enumerated, so far as possible, at his "usual place of abode" or the place where he usually lives. Where individual members of a family are away from home at the time the census is taken, they will be reported to the enumerator by other members of the family.

For cases where it is known in advance that the whole family will be away from home at that time, special provision has been made by the Director of the Census in the form of an "absent family schedule," which is to be filled out by some responsible member of the family in advance, to the census date and transmitted to the local Supervisor of the Census. A copy of this schedule can be secured by application to Mr. J. Warren Stevens, of Texarkana, Arkansas, who is the Census Supervisor for this district.

Families planning to be away during the month of April, leaving the home closed or with no one in charge who is qualified to give the census information to the enumerator, are urged to obtain one of these schedules at once and to fill it out and send it to Mr. Stevens at the earliest possible date. Or if the house is left in charge of a servant who will be sure to be at home when the enumerator calls, the schedule may be left with such servant for delivery to the enumerator. The information furnished on this schedule will be treated as confidential and will be used only for the tabulation of statistics which will not reveal any information with regard to individuals or families.

"My back and sides ached until I could not rest. I almost dreaded to see night come."

ANALYZE THE ALLOWANCE ON YOUR USED CAR

If a dealer pays you more than the true worth of the car he must make up the difference by extra charges on the new car or re-sell it to some one else at too high a price

PERMANENT value is always better than a temporary bargain in the purchase of an automobile. It pays to look ahead and consider reliability and ultimate up-keep costs, as well as comfort, safety, speed, and beauty of line and color.

Since most automobiles are bought for replacement, the value set on your used car is a factor in almost every purchase. Frequently it is given an importance beyond its true worth.

Used cars have a definite market value and you are justly entitled to an allowance based on that value. It is not fair that you receive less. It is not to your best interests to receive more.

You may not get the largest used-car allowance from the Ford dealer, but that very fact should give you confidence that you are receiving full value in the new car. Ford charges are not marked up or increased to cover a high trade-in allowance on your old car.

Because there is no waste, extravagance or undue profit in manufacturing, distribution or selling, every dollar you pay for a Ford brings a full dollar in return. In lower first cost, in reliability and long life, in the low cost of operation, service and replacement parts, the Ford will save you much more than the seeming difference in trade allowance.

If a dealer pays you more than the true worth of the car he must either re-sell it to some one else at too high a price or make up the difference on the new car. This he cannot do unless he is allowed an excessive profit on the car or on financing, extra equipment and other charges. In either case, you pay the bill, for no way has yet been found to give something for nothing. The money must come from somewhere.

FURTHERMORE, at least $75 extra value is given to you in the new Ford in the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, the Rustless Steel, the five steel-spoke wheels, and the four Houdaille hydraulic double-acting shock absorbers. The unusually large number of ball and roller bearings, and the extensive use of fine steel forgings instead of castings or stampings, are other features that show the extra quality built into the Ford car.
